(By Associated Press.)
SEBASTOPOL, May 27.—Several bombs were thrown here to-day while a review of troops was being held after the Te Deum in celebration of the anniversary of the Emperor's coronation. Three persons were killed and several wounded. Among the wounded were the commander of the fortress, General Novikoff, who received slight hurts, and the chief of police, who was gravely injured. Other high dignitaries escaped. Vice-Admiral Choukhin, commanding the Black Sea fleet, who is a special subject of the terrorist's revenge, was not present. Two of the bomb throwers were arrested.

Bomb Thrown at Tiflis.

(By Associated Press.)
TEFLIS, May 27.—While Governor-General Timosheff and Chief of Police Martynoff were driving to-day, bombs were thrown at them. Neither was injured, but a Cossack belonging to their escort, was killed. The crime was attempted in the center of the town, a few rods from the scene of the assassination of General Gribanoff, chief of staff of the viceroy of the Caucasus, who was killed by a bomb explosion January 25th last.

General Timosheff and Chief of Police Martynoff were riding in separate carriages. They were on their way to attend the coronation anniversary Te Deum at the cathedral. Two bombs were thrown simultaneously, one of them falling in front of the carriage of the viceroy, who was driving with his revolver in hand, shot and instantly killed one of the terrorists, but the other escaped. Governor-General Timosheff's coachman was wounded.

The city is agitated, fearing an armed outbreak.

BAD COMPLEXIONS

Deprived Blood Causes Pimples and Boils—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Make New Blood and Cure Follows.

"I abused my stomach, my blood got out of order and then my face broke out with pimples and boils," says T. E. Robertson, of 157 Adams Street, Washington, Pa. "I was over two years ago."

My stomach was in bad shape. After eating I would have to rest awhile or I would suffer the most severe pains in my stomach. On arising I would often feel so dizzy that I could hardly stand up. The slightest exertion would start my back aching so that I often had to sit down and rest awhile. At times I experienced a pain around the heart which alarmed me, but which I suppose came from my stomach trouble.

"I began to break out on the face with pimples and boils with such frequency that to the house a week or more at a time. One day I saw Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People advertised in a pamphlet which was left at the door and I thought I would give them a trial. I took several boxes of the pills before all the pimples and boils left me, but I am now glad to say that my blood is good. I do not have any eruptions and I no longer have the head and stomach troubles I have described. I am very grateful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me and I have recommended them and always will advise those who are suffering from bad blood or stomach trouble to try them."

If you want good health you must have good blood. Bad blood is the root of most common diseases like anemia, rheumatism, sciatica, neuritis, St. Vitus' dance, nervousness, indigestion, dizziness, partial paralysis and locomotor ataxia.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50c per box, six boxes for $2.50, by Dr. Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

TO RETURN TO THE STAGE.

GOLDIE MOHR made by George

WIDOW OF MILLIONAIRE WILL RETURN TO STAGE

Goldie Mohr, Once Chorus Girl, Now Possessor of Fortune, Will Appear Before Footlights Again.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
NEW YORK, May 27.—Goldie Mohr is going back to the stage. The news that the widow of Alan W. Wood, the Pittsburgh millionaire, has been asked again to the call of the footlights will cause no surprise among those who know her best.

Since she was widowed last August, Miss Mohr, or Mrs. Alan W. Wood, as she is now called, has been living in handsome apartments in Central Park West and Seventy-second Street, on her share of her husband's rich estate.

She talked hesitatingly of her plans yesterday. "I hardly know what to say," she faltered. "The stage was my career and my chief interest, and it is natural that I should long for it again. When I told my friends I was going back to it I was half in fun, but now I am thinking of it seriously."

The Trio left Fomborg on April 12th in ballast for Chaleur Bay. During a severe storm on the tenth, her master went by the board, and she began to leak. It was only by incessant work by Captain Nunan and the crew that the Trio was kept afloat until the Ionian was sighted. The crew was landed at Quebec, where the Norwegian consul took charge of them.

MAKING GOOD TIME.

This is regarded by the department as particularly good time, especially in the inclement weather. It was there that heavy weather was expected, which might delay the progress of the craft.

Election in Belgium.

(By Associated Press.)
BRUSSELS, May 27.—The general elections throughout Belgium were held to-day. There was no excitement, and the business of the government is practically assured.

The Belgian electoral system is such that the government cannot be overthrown unless there be very strong anti-government feeling. There was no cause to-day for elections for such an attitude.

VANDERBILT WINS GREAT FRENCH DERBY

Maintenon in First for Paris Stake Worth About $20,000.

(By Associated Press.)
PARIS, May 27.—William K. Vanderbilt's Maintenon, with Jacky Vanderbilt in the saddle, won the Prix du Jockey Club (the French Derby) at Chantilly to-day. The race was for three-year-olds at one and a half miles, and the stake was valued at $20,000. It was one of the most interesting races of the season.

Maintenon beat M. Chiffault's Querido by half a length. Seventeen horses started. Notwithstanding the inclement weather a most brilliant assembly of leading persons in diplomatic and social life witnessed Mr. Vanderbilt's victory. Begal, with Woodland up, also enhanced the reputation of the American stable by winning the Prix des Eclaireurs.

bride must afterwards present this wedding dress to the Virgin de la Paloma, the popular protectress of maternity.

Their Future Home.

The Royal Palace of Madrid is doubly interesting just now, both as the place from which King Alfonso goes to meet his bride and as the future home of the royal couple. The suite of apartments, designed for the future Queen, has been most lavishly prepared with the richest art treasures from the galleries of Spain. But aside from this the palace itself is one of the largest and most sumptuous of Europe. It is built on the former site of the Alcazar of the ancient kings, from plans by the Italian artist, Giovanni Battista Sacchetti. The first stone was laid in 1738 and twenty-six years afterwards Charles III. took possession of the edifice and began the decoration of the interior. The expenditure amounted to 300,000,000 reales. Immense substructures give the palace a dominating position on the Manzanares River, and lend it the appearance not only of a palace, but of a great citadel commanding the city. It covers an expanse of 22,500 square metres; 450 feet on each side and 150 feet high. The massive structure is of granite throughout, except the frames of the doors and windows, which are of marble.

The entrance to the Royal Palace, which is conceded to be one of the most magnificent in the world, has been further enriched for the present occasion. It is gorgeously carpeted and ornamented, illuminated day and night by myriads of electric lights concealed within the rich gold cornices, with Hainbalds in their brilliant uniforms acting as guards. At the first landing, serving as pillars to the balustrade, there are two enormous lions of stone, the work of the sculptors, deza and Michel. It is well known that Napoleon I. had a jealous regard for these lions on the day that he admired the palace, remarking to his brother that they were better housed than he himself in Paris. The lion which was placed on the right is the work of the Neapolitan artist, Canova Giacomini, heir of the great decorator, Lucas Tordan. The largest and most important fresco, which occupies the centre, is an allegory of the

LEADER OF THE SMART SET A CHARMING HEROINE.

Miss Ethel Rawdon, daughter of Judge Rawdon, of New York, and a petted member of the smart set, has been chosen, strangely enough, as the heroine of a famous novelist's latest and greatest book. With all the world from which to choose a heroine, Mrs. Amelie E. Barr, selected a typical New York girl of the best sort, the kind of girl who is womanly, yet resourceful, tender, yet strong, beautiful and charming; yet up to date to the very tips of her dainty, white, tapering fingers. In short, the ideal American girl, a typical New York girl of the best sort, and would give ten years of his life to marry.

Such is Ethel Rawdon, heroine of "The Man Between," Mrs. Barr's masterpiece, which is to appear serially in this paper beginning Sunday, June 3d, before its regular publication in book form. It is a novel that will make every reader think, and think good and hard. It will also be the much talked-of book of the month.

"The Man Between" is the second of the series, and will appear in four installments, handsomely illustrated, beginning June 3d and ending June 24th. Order early before the edition is sold out.

"Triumph of Religion, Assailed by Spain." The Salle des Ambassadeurs, where the incoming reception of the Spanish monarchs is one of the most splendid apartments of the palace, with fittings of inimitable value. The flooring is of different marbles, which form designs in controlling relief. The walls are hung with crimson velvet and gilt armaments, the brightness of which has been toned down by time. The enormous mirrors, which came from the royal factory of La Grance, are surrounded by heavy gold frames of the time of Charles IV., while intervening statues of bronze and marble represent heroes, pagan gods and allegorical figures. Some of the notable adornments of this remarkable apartment are "The Fawn," by Praxiteles; "Venus," an "Alcibiades," after the conception of Jean de Bologne; "Jupiter on the Eagle," and at each side of the throne, statues of Prudence and Justice, represented as the counselors of kings.

The Royal Throne.

The royal throne is under a superb red canopy, situated above the steps richly carpeted in the same color. At either side stand four gilt lions, represented as the protectors of the monarch. The ceiling forms a brilliant contrast, being clear and luminous. It was executed by the famous Venetian painter, Tiepolo, and is said to be one of the most finished decorative works in the world. The idea developed in this hall, the Salle des Ambassadeurs, is "The Glory of the Spanish Monarchy," represented by a proud matron seated on a throne and attended by allegorical deities, contemplating a sky peopled by numerous figures, among them Mercury, the symbol of the material prosperity. In the corners appear picturesque groups of types of the different Spanish regions, and the products of the provinces arranged in all allegorical ensemble. In the angles there are sculptured medallions of Spain, representing the great rival cities of the past. The imagination of some recent visitors to this gorgeous apartment has led to the report that Princess Ena greatly resembles the proud matron seated on a throne, which forms the chief decoration representing the Glory of Spain.

Many of the salons are decorated with rich embroidered cloths, and the luxurious furniture and ceilings were painted by Mangs, Balyen, Velasquez, Vincente Lopez and Juan Riera. This furniture has been the slow growth of the luxury-loving Kings of Spain, and represent an inimitable museum. Formerly it was not possible to adequately admire the beauties of the palace, as its vastness made it rather dark, but the modern innovation of electric light has brought out the beauties of the interior. The electric lights used with more dazzling effect than in the Salle des Ambassadeurs, with its majestic thrones on which Alfonso and his Queen will soon be seated together.

The China Hall.

Princess Ena is said to take special interest in the china hall, so-called, not because the royal china is kept there, but because the ceilings and walls are covered with porcelain. The hall is divided into two sections, the one representing in polychrome relief. Another sumptuous salon is the large dining hall, decorated with tapestry woven in gold and silk, by Pannemaker, in Brussels, for Philip II. It is in six different rooms, each representing a different scene of the life of the monarch. The dining hall is a delightful garden. Vertumilo is represented as a Bacchus solfing the favors of a nymph, whose affection he finally conquers.

Besides the foregoing main apartments there are many others of great richness. Some of them contain famous collections of old clocks; others, including the chapel, contain most interesting relics of the Christian era. The old tapestries of the palace, about 1,800 in number, have no equal either in artistic execution or in design for the future Queen, has been 100,000 volumes and 200,000 manuscripts, many of them unique. Such is the truly royal residence of the new Queen of Spain.

"BE HONEST," IS MORTON'S ADVICE

Former Vice-President Hale and Hearty at Eighty-two Years of Age.

MESSAGE TO AMERICAN YOUTH

Busily Preparing for Annual European Trip—Seems Still Young.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

NEW YORK, May 27.—During the eighty-two years which Mr. Levi Parsons Morton has just completed as his span of active life the United States and the world in general have undergone a development and a change which are even surprising to Mr. Morton, and himself. The progress of science, art and civilization has been so great that the one that he has seen this tremendous advancement in all lines of endeavor, he has accomplished the proud distinction of being young at eighty-two. He is not by any means an old man except in the eyes of the generation that he has seen.

A reporter spent an afternoon with Mr. Morton at his delightful country seat, Ellerslie, upon the Hudson near Rhinebeck, the other day and found Mr. Morton in the same genial mood, retaining gentlemanly in his all his public and political association.

Very Modest.

If modesty can be a fault, Mr. Morton is afflicted with it in an exaggerated form. He does not like to talk about himself in any conceivable way.

"What," asked the reporter, "has impressed you most as a public event or a development for the good in the history of the United States during your long experience?"

"That is rather a hard question to answer," replied Mr. Morton; "but, while I have seen wars and territorial acquisitions and scientific marvels accomplished, and as being most prominent of all was the time that Cyrus Field completed the Atlantic cable. It was then made possible for the President of the United States to have almost direct communication with the Queen of England. That has loomed up big in my memory, and I know of no event which has impressed me more."

Mr. Morton's name is associated with success. During all his long public career as congressman, governor, minister, and Vice-President, and his private career as a financier and a distinguished person of affairs, there has been no smirch on his record. In these days when "muck-raking" is so prevalent and so pronounced Mr. Morton's name has in no way been defiled.

Honesty Unquestioned.

Mr. Morton's political honesty has been called in question, and his influence for good in the political life of the United States has been so conspicuous as to win the approval of all political parties almost without regard to his own determined partisanship.

His record of business undertakings also, as well as his career as a statesman, is well-nigh spotless. He has accomplished it not merely by brain force, but by inherent desire to be honest and upright. The keynote of Mr. Morton's personality has not been money-getting, although in that line of endeavor he has been remarkably successful. He has won the esteem of his fellowmen largely because he has considered and treated them as fellow men beings and not as objects of greed.

When the reporter suggested to Mr. Morton that physically he seemed quite as young as he did twenty years ago the former Governor of the Empire State and Vice-President of the United States replied:

"Possibly I look it, but I do not feel it. The lawlessness of age is on me. I feel indolent and ready to rest."

In spite of Mr. Morton's declaration of laziness he is busily preparing for his annual European trip and will sail in the course of the next two or three weeks.

His interest in current events is keen and discriminating.

When Mr. Morton was asked to an issue and asked what message he could give to the young American of to-day his reply was:

"Be honest."

AUTOMOBILES FOR PATROL SERVICE

Move on Foot to Bring Richmond Police Department Up to Date.

The police department of Richmond under its present board of commissioners is making rapid strides in the march of progress, and the time is not far distant when other and more or less sweeping reforms will come.

Mr. Walter F. Myers, member from Madison Ward, is one of the progressive men in the body, and he is putting up an earnest fight for the adoption of automobiles as patrol wagons instead of using horses, as at present.

Mr. Myers contends that the service would not only be quicker and better, but save the cost of maintenance would be much less.

"The automobile business is in its infancy yet," he said last night, "but you will see them used as patrol wagons and for many other important purposes before many years."

Mr. Myers is anxious to see the board adopt his ideas, and adopt automobiles to haul prisoners from the place arrested to the station, and he thinks it will finally work out all right.

He says an automobile can be kept in repair for much less than it will cost to keep a horse, and that the service would be far more satisfactory in every respect.

It would cause no surprise to see private cars wheeling to the station houses in autos in less than one year, and if the police department adopts the scheme, then the Committee on Poor would probably fall in line and use autos as ambulances for the city home.

THINGS THAT THE WORLD WILL BE DOING THIS WEEK

Many Matters of Moment to Be Considered in Congress. Nations Interested in Forthcoming Wedding of Young King of Spain.

The Senate is counting on a busy week. Senator Kittredge will present in a speech of considerable length, the reasons which impelled the majority of the committee on inter-oceanic canals to report in favor of the sea level plan. It is now expected that he will speak today and it is understood that his address will be the first of a series on the subject. On Tuesday, Senator Millard, chairman of the canal committee, will present a report giving the views of the minority members in favor of a lock canal.

The general plan is to press the consideration of the appropriation bills as speedily as possible. The postoffice and naval bills will be ready for consideration early in the week, but it is not yet decided which will be given preference. Especial attention will be given to the provision for a new monster warship.

Rate Bill Conference.

Conference reports on the agricultural and executive appropriation bills probably will be made before the close of the week, and it is expected that the report of the conferences on the Indian bill, which already has been presented, will be taken up early Monday.

Two or three more bills have been waiting somewhat on the return of Senator Tillman, who has been in South Carolina the past week. These are the appointment of conferees on the rate bill and the further consideration of the Barnes nomination. Mr. Tillman is expected to be in his seat to-day. The rate bill conferees, of whom the South Carolina senator will be one will be named then, and it is expected that the conference will be held as soon as Mr. Tillman can conclude his work in connection with the nomination of B. F. Barnes, the president's assistant secretary.

The canal supply bill will be debated at some length and Senator Raynor will be among those to be heard on that measure.

Week in the House.

Work on the sundry civil appropriation bill will begin in the national House of Representatives this week. The bill is larger than any preceding sundry civil act, aggregating approximately $90,000,000.

There will be every effort to confine general debate strictly to the measure. Chairman Tammey estimates that it will require fully a week to consider and pass the bill. It will not be reported from committee until Wednesday.

Legislation for the District of Columbia has the right of way to-day. It is the plan to finish the diplomatic and consular work will be a superb building.

After completed, the store will be occupied by Messrs. Hermann Schmidt & Sons. The building is to be three stories high with a spacious basement, and will be a perfect sanitation. The frontage will be fifty-five feet and the edifice will extend back to the rear alley for 120 feet.
